

A comparative study of diction "Hind Bagh" and "Hindu Bagh" in the light of philology هندو باغ که هند باغ ؟

Abdul Karim Amir (Pashto Lecturer, Govt Degree College Loralari)

Abstract:

Sometime ago Muslim Bagh was regarded as "Hind Bagh". This was mistakenly considered as "Hindu Bagh". Its very name was changed on the persistent demand of masses. Hind Bagh is a town of Killasaifullah, which is integral part of Zhob Division in Baluchistan. In this article the diction "Hind" and "Hindu" have been assessed. The "Hind" is ancient than "Hindu". Its traces are absolutely found in Pashto language till now. It is said that the diction "Hind" is derived from "Sindh". It is linked with Greek. However Greek had paid their visit 2300 years ago in Indus region. This adage has now great importance so far. Before the advent of Greek this region had own name. The Pashtoon used to call it with names of "sindh and hind". Colloquially, geographically, countless similar names and compounds are found in Pashtoon region with same sense. These are called with same meaning in nearest other regions, used for water and river.

Key words: philosophy, diction, Hindu Bagh, Muslim bagh.